Man Camp Hike Opportunity: Devils Angels Head Lookout

This year's Man Camp will be offering a hike to Devils Angels Head Lookout, giving men the opportunity to step away from the usual pace and engage in something demanding, meaningful, and shared. This hike is completely optional and will take the place of the annual competition for those who choose to participate. Rather than measuring strength through rivalry, this experience invites men to walk side by side—encouraging one another upward, sharing the burden of the climb, and reaching the summit together. There is something powerful about men hiking together: conversations deepen, barriers come down, and God often speaks most clearly when distractions are stripped away. As iron sharpeneth iron, so men grow stronger—physically, spiritually, and personally—when they pursue a common goal together.

Hike Overview:

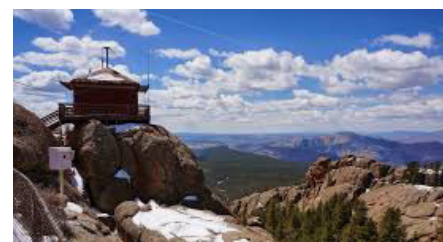

Devils Angels Head Lookout is a popular and rewarding hike located in the Rampart Range southwest of Sedalia, Colorado. The trail leads to a historic fire lookout perched high above the surrounding forest, offering sweeping views of the Front Range.

Trail Length & Elevation

Distance: ~2.9 miles round trip
Elevation Gain: ~869 feet
Highest Point: ~9,700 feet above sea level

Difficulty

This hike is generally rated moderate to moderately strenuous. While the distance is relatively short, the trail climbs steadily uphill and becomes steeper near the top. The final ascent includes 143 metal steps that spiral through rock to the lookout tower. This portion can be physically demanding and may challenge those who are uncomfortable with heights or stairs.

Helpful Tips

Bring plenty of water
Wear sturdy hiking shoes with good traction
Bring sun protection & a camera
Expect thinner air due to elevation

Summary

The Lookout hike is a short but challenging adventure that rewards effort with breathtaking views and a strong sense of accomplishment. For Man Camp participants, it offers an opportunity not only to reach a summit, but also to strengthen bonds, and grow together through shared effort. We hope this experience will enhance Man Camp this year.
